Summary

The ten files in total contained ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station. These files contain presidential results information for 10,984 polling stations. The files are not without errors. But these are relatively few in number to systematically benefit any candidate.

The polling station results reported by the SBO observers as collected at the polling stations is highly consistent with ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station. For the 750 sampled polling stations, 96.8% of the data is an exact match between what was reported by the SBO observers and what is contained in the ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station files. This high rate of exact matches between the ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station and the SBO data is true across all 23 candidate (including Chamisa and Mnangagwa) as well as across all 10 provinces. For the 750 polling station the total votes for Chamisa differs by only 236 votes (SBO 146,426 vs ZEC 146,650). Similarly for Mnangagwa the total votes differs by only 208 votes (SBO 162,359 vs ZEC 162,567).

Analysis of the results for the parliamentary elections and the presidential elections does not show significant discrepancies. Total valid votes for the parliamentary was 4,773,171 compared to 4,774,878 for the presidential a difference of 43,490 votes or 0.9%. Overall Chamisa received 508,458 more votes in the presidential election than MDC Alliance did in the parliamentary elections while Mnangagwa received -22,682 fewer votes in the presidential election than ZANU-PF did in the parliamentary elections. In those constituencies where the number of votes in the presidential election was significantly higher than the parliamentary election (2% or more) Chamisa received 18,224 more votes than Mnangagwa. Though this analysis does highlight the anomaly of Mutare North constituency and the increase of 18,349 (131.1%) in presidential compared to parliamentary valid votes (though this increase was relatively evenly split between Chamisa and Mnanagagwa)

This analysis does not preclude either the MDC Alliance producing its own information calling into question the presidential results or the court ruling in favor of the MDC Alliance's petition, but this analysis provides no evidence to support claims of systematic errors in the tabulation process. This analysis also does not attempt to quantify the impact of the pre-election issues such as intimidation, imbalances in registration rates between urban and rural areas or the lack of access to information (particularly in rural areas).

ZESN's SBO process data continues to draw attention to issues not with the counting of ballot papers or tabulation of results, but with concerns about voters in Harare disproportionately being turned away and not being able to vote as well as assisted voting which may have resulted in voters not voting their conscience. ZEC data on the number of voters turned away by polling station as well as the number of voters assisted to vote by polling station would help determine if these issues unduly influenced the outcome of the election.

With regards to the parliamentary elections, ZANU-PF won 144 constituency based seats and were awarded 35 women's seats on a proportional basis by province for a total of 179. This is 66.3% of the total seats in the National Assembly. The MDC Alliance won 64 constituency based seats and was awarded 24 women's seats on a proportional basis by province. For the remaining three seats NPF and an independent candidate each won a constituency based seat while MDC-T was awarded one women's seat on a proportional basis by province. If the three NDF, MDC-T, and independent MPs in the National Assembly all vote with the MDC Alliance MPs then together they can prevent ZANU-PF from having a two-thirds majority and being able to unilaterally changing the constitution.

The MDC Alliance, however, could have performed much better in the parliamentary elections. There are 11 constituencies in which the MDC Alliance field two candidates and in three of those constituencies the two MDC Alliance candidates together received the most votes meaning that if the MDC Alliance had fielded only one candidate the party likely would have one (Bulawayo South, Goromonzi West, and Harare South). There are another 11 constituencies where ZANU-PF won less than 50% of the parliamentary vote, but one the constituency where Chamisa won the most votes in the presidential election. This suggests that if the MDC Alliance had formed more alliance with other parties and had reduced the number of parliamentary candidates that the MDC Alliance could have picked up another 11 constituency based seats. Finally, there is one constituency (Zvishavane Ngezi) where Chamisa received more votes than Mnangagwa by more than the ZANU-PF candidate beat the MDC Alliance candidate in the parliamentary election plus votes for other candidates. This calls this parliamentary result into question. Thus, it is possible that MDC Alliance could have increased its tally of constituency based seats by 15 from 64 to 79 (plus a related modest increase in women's seats awarded on a proportional basis by province).

Description of ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station Files

On Friday 03 August the Zimbabwe Electoral Commission (ZEC) provided ten electronic files containing the polling station level results for the 2018 presidential election.

The files contained results for 10,985 polling stations.

For each polling station the files contained: location information (province, district, constituency, local authority, ward, polling station name, polling station code), votes for each of 23 presidential candidates, rejected ballot papers, unaccounted for ballot papers, total votes cast, and total valid votes. A total of 34 pieces of information.

The file do not contain information on the number of registrants, the number of ballot papers issued, the number of unused ballot papers, or the number of spoilt ballot papers for polling stations.

For this analysis the results for the individual polling stations were extracted from the original files and only the polling station data itself was used. None of the aggregate figures for ward, constituency, or province were used. Only polling station results themselves.

Missing Information from the ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station Files

The files should contain 373,320 pieces of information (10,980 polling stations times 34 piece of information). Actual information included in the file was 372,955 or 99.9% of expected information. In total, 365 pieces of information or 0.1% was missing.

- One polling station name was missing;
- Three polling station results for Busha, Joseph Makamba, FreeZim Congress were missing;

- One polling station result for Dzapasi, Melbah, #1980 Freedom Movement Zimbabwe was missing;
- Two polling station results for Gava, Mapfumo Peter, United Democratic Front were missing;
- Two polling station results for Kasiyamhuru, Blessing, Zimbabwe Partnership for Prosperity were missing;
- Two polling station results for Khupe, Thokozani, Movement for Democratic Change were missing;
- One polling station result for Madhuku, Lovemore, National Constitutional Assembly was missing;
- Three polling station results for Mangoma, Elton Steers, Coalition of Democrats were missing;
- Six polling station results for Manyika, Noah Ngoni, Build Zimbabwe Alliance were missing;
- Two polling station results for Mapfumo-Chiguvare, Tonderai Johannes Timothy, People's Progressive party Zimbabwe were missing;
- Three polling station results for Mariyacha Violet, United Democracy Movement were missing;
- One polling station result for Mhambi-Hove, Divine, National Alliance of Patriotic and Democratic Republicans was missing;
- One polling station result for Moyo. Nkosana Donald, Alliance for the People's Agenda was missing;
- Three polling station results for Mteki, Bryn Taurai, Independent were missing;

- 326 polling stations were mission unaccounted for ballot papers.

No polling stations were missing results for either Chamisa, Nelson Movement for Democratic Change Alliance or Mnangagwa, Emmerson Dambudzo, Zimbabwe African National Union Patriotic Front.

Six polling stations were missing two pieces, 352 were missing one piece of information, and 10,622 polling stations were missing no information.

Incorrect Information in the ZEC Presidential Results Polling Station Files

There are two polling stations with the code "6301HRE3104 A" with the same results. One is correct with the polling station name Glen View 3 B Primary School A (Harare province, Harare District, Glenview South constituency, Harare Municipality local authority, Ward 31). The other is a duplicate but with Ward 32 (though the results are listed under Ward 31). This affects the vote totals and the polling station results are counted twice.

Table 1: Duplicate Polling Stations in ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station
Province	Constituency	Local Authority	Code	Chamisa	Mnangagwa
Harare	Glen View South	Harare Municipality Ward 31	6301HRE3104 A	479	115
Harare	Glen View South	Harare Municipality Ward 32	6301HRE3104 A	479	115
Total Affected				958	230

Not including the duplicate polling station (“6301HRE3104 A” mentioned above) there are six sets of two polling stations with identical results which suggests that the results for at least one (or possibly both) polling stations is incorrect which affects the results totals.

Total Affected				2,440	2,752

While not affecting the vote totals, three polling stations had incorrect polling stations codes.

- Zengenene Primary School (Mashonaland East province, Murewa district, Murewa West constituency, Murewa RDC local authority, Ward 27) was listed with the polling station code “4700MRE270”, but the correct code is “4700MRE2707” (missing final “7”);
- Mbundani Open Space A Tent (Matabeleland North province, Umguza district, Umguza constituency, Umguza RDC local authority, Ward 16) was listed with the polling station code “8400UMG1607 A”, but the correct code is “8400UMG1607” (there should not be a final “A” at the end as this was not a split polling station, but two polling stations at the same location); and
- Mbundani Open Space B Tent (Matabeleland North province, Umguza district, Umguza constituency, Umguza RDC local authority, Ward 16) was listed with the polling station code “8400UMG1608 B”, but the correct code is “8400UMG1608” (there should not be a final “B” at the end as this was not a split polling station, but two polling stations at the same location).

While not affecting the vote totals, there are six polling stations in Masvingo province, Chivi district, Chivi Central constituency, Chivi RDC, Ward 18 that have the polling station codes for polling stations in Masvingo province, Bikita district, Bikita East constituency, Ward 21:

- Gwitima Business Centre – Incorrect Code: 0400BKT2101 Hall – Correct Code: 1200CHV1801
- Gwitima Primary School – Incorrect Code: 0400BKT2102 – Correct Code: 1200CHV1802
- Jaka Chishozhova Secondary School – Incorrect Code 0400BKT2103 – Correct Code: 1200CHV1803
- Mhosva Primary School – Incorrect Code: 0400BKT2104 – Correct Code: 1200CHV1804
- Vuranda Methodist Church – Incorrect Code: 0400BKT2106 – Correct Code: 1200CHV1806
- Muzogwi Primary School – Incorrect Code: 0400BKT2105 – Correct Code: 1200CHV1805

While not affecting the vote totals, there are nine polling stations that are listed with the local authority Hwange Local Board when the correct local authority is Hwange RDC (affecting Hwange RDC Wards 12, 13, and 20).

While not affecting the vote totals, there are 76 polling stations who have their local authority recorded where constituency belongs and vice versa. These are 38 polling stations in Manicaland province, Makoni district, Makoni North constituency, and Makoni RDC (Wards 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 9) and 38 polling stations in Manicaland province Makoni district, Makoni West constituency, and Makoni RDC (Wards 13, 14, 15, 16, 24, 25, and 39).

Comparison of the ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station with the ZEC List of Polling Stations

It was possible to match 100% of the 10,984 unique polling stations in the ZEC Presidential Results by Polling station files to the ZEC List of Polling Stations provided by the ZEC (10,974 is one less than 10,985 because of the duplicate record for “6301HRE3104 A”).

However, there is one polling stations from ZEC’s List of Polling Stations that could not be found in the ZEC’s Presidential Results by Polling Station files. This is Glen View 3 B Primary School “6301HRE3104 B” with 705 registrants (Harare province, Harare district, Glenview South constituency, Harare Municipality local authority, Ward 31 – this is the polling station missing because of the duplicate for “6301HRE3104 A”)

Turnout for ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station based on Registered Voters from the ZEC List of Polling Stations

As noted the ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station files did not include registered voters and hence turnout cannot be determined on its own. However, by matching the ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station to the ZEC List of Polling Stations it is possible to calculate turnout.

There are 11 (0.1%) polling stations with turnout of 100% or more. At these 11 polling stations a total of 4,670 votes were cast of which 2,292 votes were for Chamisa and 2,116 for Mnangagwa.

Overall, 9.5% of polling stations had turnout between 90% and 99%. These are disproportionately in Mashonaland Central province (and to a lesser extent Mashonaland East and Mashonaland West) for which 44.4% of polling stations had a turnout between 90% and 99%. As a result Mashonaland Central has an overall turnout of 89.1% compared to an average turnout of 85.1%.

Comparison of ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station with SBO Results Data

ZEC Presidential Polling Station Results for the 23 presidential candidates plus rejected ballot papers and unaccounted for ballot papers were compared SBO data polling station by polling station. This is a total of 18,870 pieces of information. In total, for 18,158 or 96.8% there was an exact match between the ZEC Presidential Polling Station Results and the SBO data.

For both Chamisa and Mnangagwa the match rate was 97.1% with the match rate varying from a low of 94.8% for Mutinhiri to a high of 98.9 for Mapfumo-Chiguvare. The match rate for rejected ballot papers was 90.5% and for unaccounted for ballot papers was 96.4%

For 503 (67.1%) sampled polling station the results for all 23 presidential candidates plus rejected ballot papers and unaccounted for ballot papers all match between the SBO data and the ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station. For 145 (19.3%) sampled polling stations the difference is less than 1% of the total vote while for 78 (10.4%) the difference is between 1% and 5%. For only 24 (3.2%) of polling stations is the difference more than 5%.

The match rate by province ranged from a low of 95.2% for Mashonaland Central to a high of 97.6% for Bulawayo and Manicaland.

For the 750 sampled polling stations the SBO total vote for Chamisa was 146,426 while for the ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station it was 146,650 a difference of only 236 votes or less than one vote per polling station. Similarly for Mnangagwa, the SBO total vote for the 750 sampled polling stations was 162,359 while the total for the ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station was 162,587 a difference of only 208 again less than one vote per polling station. Overall, the SBO total votes for all 23 candidates plus rejected ballot papers and unaccounted for ballot papers for the 750 sampled polling stations was 324,768 while for the ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station the total was 325,353 a difference of 591 less than one vote per polling station.

The difference in rejected ballot papers between the SBO data and the ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station for the 750 sampled polling stations was 282 (6.1%) again less than one rejected ballot paper per polling station. There was a significant difference in the number of unaccounted for ballot papers – only 5 for the ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Stations, but 115 for the SBO data for the 750 sampled polling stations. This is most due, however, to two SBO Observers who reported large numbers of unaccounted for ballot papers who most likely included unused ballot papers in this category.

The percent vote for each candidate as announced by the ZEC included rejected ballots in the calculations. This explains the discrepancy in the calculation of the percent vote for Chamisa and Mnangagwa. Excluding rejected ballots Chamisa and Mnangagwa received 45.1% and 51.4% of the vote respectively while including rejected ballots they received 44.4% and 50.7% of the vote. These figures are equally consistent with the SBO estimates and reflect two different ways of calculating the percent vote.

Comparison Constituency Level Results from ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Station with Parliamentary Results as Announced by ZEC

Overall, turnout between the two elections is consistent with 4,774,878 valid votes cast for all 210 parliamentary elections and 4,773,171 valid votes cast in the presidential election. This is a difference of 43,490 votes or 0.9%. Overall Chamisa received 508,458 more votes in the presidential election than MDC Alliance did in the parliamentary elections while Mnangagwa received -22,682 fewer votes in the presidential election than ZANU-PF did in the parliamentary elections.

There are 70 constituencies for which fewer presidential valid votes were cast than parliamentary valid votes with a total of 7,262 fewer votes cast. At the same time, there are 139 constituencies for which more presidential valid votes were cast than parliamentary valid votes with a 50,652 more votes cast. There is one constituency for which the number of presidential and parliamentary valid votes is the same (Gwanda South constituency in Matabeleland South with 12,072 valid votes for both elections).

Of the 139 constituencies where the valid vote increased from the parliamentary to the presidential election, there are 11 constituencies where there was an increase in valid votes of 2% or more between the parliamentary and presidential elections. These constituencies account for 36,938 of the 50,652 additional presidential valid votes or 72.9%. For eight of the 11 constituencies Chamisa gained votes relative to Mnangagwa in the presidential election compared to the parliamentary election. Overall, for these constituencies Chamisa had a net gain 18,244 votes relative to Mnangagwa.

Of the 70 constituencies for which valid votes for the presidential election decreased there are three constituencies where the decrease in valid votes from the parliamentary to the presidential election was 2% or more. These three constituencies account for -3,611 of the decrease in votes or 49.7% of the decrease.

There is one constituency that is a significant outlier: Mutare North. For Mutare North valid votes is 131.1% higher for the presidential election than for the parliamentary election (Presidential 32,099 vs Parliamentary 13,993). Chamisa received 7,896 more votes in the presidential election than MDC Alliance did in the parliamentary election (Presidential 11,858 vs Parliamentary 3,962) while Mnangagwa received 12,406 more votes in presidential election (Presidential 18,917 vs Parliamentary 6,511).

Appendix 1 & 2 provide comparisons of ZEC parliamentary results with ZEC Presidential Results by Polling Stations. Appendix 1 provides this information sorted by province and constituency while Appendix 2 provides the same information sorted by percent difference in valid votes.

Parliamentary Results

Overall, the MDC Alliance won 63 constituency based seats, ZANU-PF 145 constituency based seats, NPF one constituency based seat and an independent candidate won one constituency based seat. In total, there are a net of 14 constituency based seats MDC Alliance would have likely won if they had fielded only one candidate per constituency and if other third party candidates and independents had not stood. Further, there are six constituencies whose parliamentary results are in conflict with the presidential results suggesting that MDC Alliance may have actually won these seats.

There are 12 constituencies for which the MDC Alliance fielded two candidates. Despite fielding two candidates, a MDC Alliance candidate won two constituencies based seats (Mabvuku-Tafara constituency in Harare and Goromonzi South constituency in Mashonaland East). There are, however, three constituencies for which the MDC Alliance candidates combined received more votes than the ZANU-PF candidate and MDC Alliance would have likely won these seats if the party had fielded only one candidate (Bulawayo South, in Bulawayo, Goromonzi West constituency in Mashonaland East, and Harare South in Harare). For the other seven constituencies where MDC Alliance fielded two candidates the ZANU-PF candidate received more votes than both MDC Alliance candidates combined. There were no constituencies for which ZANU-PF fielded two candidates. This would have been a net swing of three seats to MDC Alliance from ZANU-PF.

There are 22 constituencies that the ZANU-PF candidate won with less than 50% of the vote. Of these there are three for which the MDC Alliance fielded two candidates and, as noted above, the combined votes for the MDC Alliance candidates exceeded the votes for the ZANU-PF candidate. Of the 19 constituencies that ZANU-PF won with less than 50% of the vote and the MDC Alliance fielded one candidate there are 11 constituencies that Chamisa received more votes than Mnangagwa in the presidential election by a margin greater than ZANU-PF's victory in the parliamentary election. This suggests for these 12 constituencies that if there had not been third party candidates for the parliamentary elections then MDC Alliance candidates would have won these constituencies.

There are 19 constituencies that the MDC Alliance candidate won with less than 50% of the vote. For 18 of these constituencies Chamisa received more votes than Mnangagwa in the presidential election. However, for one constituency, Chipinge East constituency in Manicaland, Mnangagwa received more votes than Chamisa in the presidential election by a margin greater than MDC Alliance's victory in the parliamentary election. This suggests that for this constituency that if there had not been third party candidates for this parliamentary election then the ZANU-PF candidate would have won this constituency. This would have been a net swing of 11 seats to MDC Alliance from ZANU-PF.

Finally, there are six constituencies where the parliamentary results and the presidential results are in conflict. For all six the ZANU-PF candidate won the parliamentary election with over 50% of the vote, but the votes for Mnangagwa were less than the votes for the ZANU-PF candidate. Of particular note is Zvishavane Ngezi where Chamisa beat Mnangagwa by more than the ZANU-PF candidate beat the MDC Alliance candidate plus votes for other candidates. This calls into question the accuracy of this parliamentary result.
